Games are off for sat 9th dec

Hi all, games are off for tomorrow as expected. We have to hope for a real change in this weather.

Paul will be taking training on Wed as it is Sam's Birthday and I am taking her out.

Just to add about training. All the parents are pretty good now about telling me if they cannot make training and the matches. It really does help me a lot to prepare the training if I know the numbers in advance and I would like to know by the Thursday if your son can play on the Sat (if you missed training) as with 13 players I have more or less decided by Friday who is playing what game. Sometimes I change things on the day of course for injuries and things, but I probably won't play anyone if they turn up having missed training and not informed me of anything.

Don't want to sound harsh because we are all busy, but have to be fair to boys who turn up for training and parents who let me know what is happening.

I won't see you on Wed , but will next Sat at Splott Park if it is on. Training will then be on the 20th Dec for the last time this year. We then start training again on 10th Jan before games on 13th Jan.

Pete
